done for the relief of the State.

Now instead of retreating before the enemy we are advancing upon them. The army has regained confidence, the people are more cheerful and hopeful and the happiest results are looked for. Whatever may have been the intention of the [illegible] a few days ago—whether to attack Newbern or simply to forage and [illegible]—the enemy will be alarmed and driven into their strongholds, possibly out of Newbern. The railroad [illegible] eight miles from Carolina City, we [illegible] been [illegible] after a sharp engagement in which the enemy were worsted. This could as well have been done a year ago and would have been done but for the demoralization which has prevailed. The whole road, or the larger portion of it, could have been torn up and destroyed without the loss of fifty men [illegible]. However we are glad to see the [illegible] of the enemy [illegible] Newbern and [illegible] at this late day. They have been attacked too at their stronghold at Barrington's Ferry, but two miles from and in view of Newbern.—This shows that we are to have no more of the last Summer's campaign. Gen. Hill we are told in the same dispatch had advanced half a mile beyond Deep Gully, which is only eight or nine miles from Newbern. We have always contended and now contend that if the enemy cannot be driven out of our Eastern towns they should be confined to them and not be permitted to forage and depredate on the whole of the Eastern part of the State, and we are glad to see that Gen. Hill is moving that way. What his plans or intentions are we know not, but we are confident he will do all that can be done to damage the enemy and benefit our cause.

Whatever may be said of Gen. Hill [illegible], he is one of the bravest and best fighting men in the army, and we hailed the announcement of his appointment to North Carolina as a promise of better times. Before he came here the [illegible] did nothing, but [illegible] pelled to fight for their rations. [illegible] visions, and it should have been secured [illegible] instead of being abandoned as it was to the enemy, and half [illegible] would not have been necessary. Lounging in camps and about towns and cities demoralizes soldiers and destroys their efficiency; that action alone preserves discipline and renders them invincible, and Gen. Hill knows it.

The [illegible] begin to open, and during the next two or three months we may look for a series of bloody contests.

In Tennessee the army under Rosecrans is advancing and skirmishing [illegible] between the advanced forces of the armies [illegible]. The weather is opening good, the roads will soon be hard and firm, and another [illegible] battle between Bragg and Rosecrans cannot be long delayed.

On the Mississippi [illegible] Port Hudson, the enemy have been [illegible]. [illegible] ing. One fine [illegible] war belonging to the enemy burnt by [illegible].

[illegible] Charleston, we believe we shall be able to close the war upon our own terms, but if we are beaten at these places, the chances for an early and honorable peace will be far removed.

Our whole people want peace and as vigorous fighting is probably the shortest road to an honorable peace, let it be vigorous, desperate and decided. If straggling can be suppressed and those placed in the army that belong there we have but little apprehension as to the result.

OUR RAILROADS.—The N. C. Railroads are the only roads that [illegible] do not advertise the changes of schedules in the home papers. We suppose, of course, they all may have as much as they can do, but then there is something due to the public convenience in this matter. We are not bidding for the little patronage that such advertisements would afford, because, like the Railroads, we have about as much as we can do any way, but we have always noticed that the [illegible] of Railroads publish these things elsewhere and we [illegible] no reason why the public are not entitled to as much respect here as elsewhere.

Postmasters, too, give a similar notice to the public in other places, when the hours of opening and closing are changed.

The Latest News from Every Quarter.

Under the mail schedule which goes into operation to-day, the Progress will circulate all up the North Carolina Railroad to Charlotte the same day it is printed, leaving here at half-past one in the afternoon. This mail arrangement will place the Progress one day ahead of the Virginia papers every where West of Raleigh; and as our telegraphic [illegible] as those of any paper in the Confederacy, we shall give all the telegraphic news given by any other paper. We can therefore say to our Western friends that their interest as well as their State pride should induce them to take their own State papers.

This change of schedule is a matter, too, that is worthy the attention of the citizens of Fayetteville and others who get their [illegible] by the Fayetteville mail. The Progress that goes [illegible] in the Fayetteville mail, thus putting it one day ahead of the Virginia papers in that direction.

All we ask is a fair show and the Progress will make its way.

[illegible]

[illegible] Mecklenburg county, N. C. [illegible]

This is probably very [illegible] hucksters, tradesmen, Jews and niggers, refuse to take North Carolina money, and that a [illegible] of it would not buy a [illegible] the market place [illegible] a man who is so unfortunate as to offer North Carolina money.

VAN DORN'S VICTORY.—[illegible]

[illegible] very naturally have occurred [illegible]

It cannot be too often repeated, [illegible] impressed on Government and people, that the strength of our cause springs from the freedom it is designed to uphold. [illegible] to the level of [illegible]—substitute [illegible] for Liberty—and we fail and will deserve to fail.

DISTINGUISHED HOTEL ARRIVALS.—On the reception at the Libby Prison on Wednesday evening, of the [illegible] from Gordonsville, it was found that the list accompanying them did not tally with either their number or names. [illegible] Brigadier General Stoughton, Baron Wardener, Captain Barker, and a servant [illegible] Lee's cavalry, who came in charge of the prisoners, had given the distinguished prisoners a choice of the Richmond hotels for the night. [illegible] Captain Boudinot with a file of men, to the Ballard House, [illegible] were found, in bed, the distinguished [illegible] and Lieutenant McClellan [illegible] open. [illegible] the Ballard [illegible] to the Libby at [illegible]

SHOWING THEM UP.—The Milton Chronicle has lost four subscribers [illegible] Yanceyville, who has probably made a fortune during this war by his high prices for boots [illegible] he stops the paper!

The Wilmington Journal of Saturday says: "We learn that two steamers passed the Cape Fear Bar on Thursday [illegible] plainly seen by the aid of a glass [illegible]. They proceeded South. [illegible] and evidently out of their course [illegible] to communicate with the blockading squadron off [illegible] port."

ATTENTION STRAGGLERS.—Col. [illegible], Provost Marshal of the Army of Northern Virginia, has arrived in Richmond, with orders from Gen. Lee to arrest all officers and soldiers belonging to that army who may be found there without the right kind of "papers." Stragglers will do well to take the hint and hurry back without the assistance which the Colonel proposes to offer.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

From our Second Edition of yesterday.

Latest from [illegible]

KINSTON, March [illegible] Gen. Robertson after a severe fight, burnt the railroad bridge at [illegible] yesterday.

You shall be kept posted [illegible] from below.

Terrific Engagement between our Batteries and the Yankee Fleet at Port Hudson—The Sloop-of-war Mississippi destroyed, two others crippled, &c.

PORT HUDSON, March 15.—[illegible] The bombardment commenced at 5 p. m. yesterday, and continued [illegible]. Our batteries did not reply. At twelve last night a general engagement took place. The enemy endeavored to pass our batteries under cover of the darkness. The firing was most terrific, and lasted fully two hours. One gunboat [illegible]. The sloop-of-war Mississippi ran on the [illegible] and burned to the water's edge in front of our batteries. Our large vessel was [illegible] riddled and another badly crippled, and [illegible] back. [illegible] Thirty-six men and one midshipman of the Mississippi were brought in by our cavalry this morning, several [illegible] badly wounded.

From Charleston.

CHARLESTON, March 15.—The Yankee [illegible] for Port Royal. A British steamer reached a Confederate port last night laden with merchandise. She brings Nassau dates to Thursday. The steamers Ruby from Charleston, and Giraffe from Wilmington, had arrived safely at Nassau. Several steamers had reached Nassau from England intending to run the blockade. The prisoners taken [illegible] the intelligence of Burnside's appointment to command the expedition against Charleston. He had not arrived at Port Royal on Thursday, but was hourly expected.

THE CHATHAM RAILROAD COMPANY.—We learn that at the meeting of the stockholders of the Chatham Railroad Company, in this City, on the 3d instant, the amendments to the charter of the company, passed at the last session of the General Assembly, were unanimously adopted.

The main features of the amendments are as follows:

For every [illegible] subscribed by the company, the State subscribes $15,000, the subscription not to exceed $150,000. The company relinquishes the privilege granted by the Convention of corporations [illegible] taking stock in the company, exchanging bonds with the State, up to $500,000.

The company, with the approval of the Board of Internal Improvements, may extend their road into Union County. If the corporations which have heretofore subscribed to the stock of the company, viz: the City of Raleigh and the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad Company, should exchange stock with the State, then all payments by them to the State shall be invested by the commissioners of the sinking fund for the redemption of the State bonds when due.

The State is to be represented in the Board of Directors [illegible] in proportion to its stock.—Standard.
